11 Foreign Trade Zones:

- If your company imports components for distribution or manufactures finished products that are exported, Washington's Foreign Trade Zones (FTZ) can offer you a tremendous competitive advantage. Businesses with operations in a FTZ can receive foreign merchandise for storage, assembly, manufacturing and processing without being subject to formal Customs entry procedures, duties and federal excise taxes. These fees are not due until the merchandise is transferred from the FTZ and is ready for consumption by U.S. customers. If the goods are exported, then no duties or taxes are paid on those items.
- For the purposes of Customs, FTZs are considered to be outside the U.S. Customs Territory. Since they haven't formally entered the United States, components and merchandise can be shipped in and out of the FTZ exempt from duty payments. Goods can remain in the FTZ for an indefinite amount of time and a business can conduct any number of activities, including assembly, packaging, storing, cleaning, re-packing, distributing, sorting, grading, repairing, testing or recycling.
- FTZs can greatly reduce the cost of doing business and simplify processing and entry fees as well as the paperwork required. It also allows companies to retain more capital, improving cash flow as goods are moved in and out of the United States.

State Grants

Does the state provide any Grant incentives?: Yes

Governor's Strategic Reserve Fund

- Designated to assist companies with legislatively allowable expenses related to business recruitment, retention, and expansion.

Job Skills Program Competitive Grant

- Provides customized employment training. $900 per trainee.

Work Start

- A business-driven, customized workforce training program. Grants average $1500 per trainee.

State Loans

Does the state provide any Low-Interest Financing incentives?: Yes

CERB/Committed Private Partner (CPP) Loans and Grants

- For construction of public infrastructure necessary for private business expansion. CPP Program requires a private business commitment as part of the public entity's application. $2 million loan max. Up to $150,000 grant or 50% of CERB request.

Washington Small Business Credit Initiative

- Washington offers three programs through the Washington Small Business Credit Initiative (WSBCI), including CAP, which helps small businesses that are having trouble getting conventional business loans; Craft3, which serves traditionally underserved businesses that need funding; and finally, the W Fund, which is geared toward start-ups and companies emerging from state universities and research centers.

Industrial Revenue Bonds

- These bonds are ideal for businesses building or expanding manufacturing and processing facilities as they usually offer companies lower interest loans than are otherwise available on the open market.

Brownfields Revolving Loan Fund

- Brownfields are designed to provide financing for properties that require extensive cleanup and reclamation due to contamination. The Brownfields Coalition, which offers this low interest funding option, can also work with owners and developers to streamline permitting at the local, regional, and national level.

Training Programs

Does the state provide any Specialized Training Program incentives?: Yes; <http://choosewashingtonstate.com/i-need-help-with/workforce-training/>

Washington Work Start

- Washington Work Start is ideal for businesses that are making significant investments in new business activities and expansion strategies or are expanding their operations into the Washington State and need employees with specific skill sets or competencies.

Centers of Excellence

- Our Centers of Excellence are flagship institutions that build and sustain Washington's competitive advantage through statewide leadership. Each center focuses on a specific key sector that drives the state's economy and is built upon a reputation for fast, flexible, quality education and training programs. A targeted industry is identified as one that is strategic to the economic growth of a region or state. There are a total of 11 centers, ranging from aerospace to advanced manufacturing.

IMPACT Washington

- IMPACT Washington is a statewide program that helps businesses become more competitive and profitable. It is staffed by seasoned industry professionals with expertise in a diverse range of industries, products and services. From lean manufacturing to marketing, the program provides one-on-one consultations, customized training and educational seminars.

Workforce Training and Education Coordinating Board

- The Workforce Training and Education Coordinating Board maintains a statewide network of offices that work closely with community leaders, employers, job seekers and unions to create healthy and stable economies and identify workforce gaps to ensure the state has a steady supply of highly skilled workers in key sectors. As a state agency, the Workforce Board oversees a workforce development system that includes 18 education and training programs receiving almost $1 billion annually in state and federal funds. The results include employer-driven job training, job seeker service and strategic planning.

Workforce Development Council (WDC)

- The Workforce Development Council helps residents become employed, re-enter the workforce or move ahead in their careers. The WDC is a statewide network of offices established to collaborate with community leaders, employers, job seekers and unions. Their mission is to create healthy and stable economies and identify workforce gaps. The results include employer-driven job training, job seeker services, and strategic planning.

Job Skills Program

- If your company needs a customized training program, our Job Skills Program can help you connect with a local community college to design and teach it. The program creates employment opportunities in communities with high unemployment rates, high rates of poverty, and communities impacted by large-scale job loss. JSP funds half of the training cost; partner employers provide a cash or in-kind match to fund the other half.

Washington Customized Training Program

- The Washington Customized Training Program can also provide you with employee-training that is delivered at the local community college, technical center or private career college level. Eligible programs can include skills assessment, evaluation, training equipment, materials, facilities, supplies and provide training in basic education and skills, technical skills and job-related instruction, and English as a second language. This particular program allows you to pay for the training, in part, with a business and occupation tax credit, so you must be a Washington State business to qualify.

Workforce College

- Workforce College offers Washington businesses a one-stop resource for employee training at 34 Community and Technical Colleges across the state. Businesses can search for colleges that provide training in a particular subject and request proposals for customized training.

WorkSource Labor Analysis

- A division of Washington State Employment Security Department, WorkSource is an invaluable resource for employers, providing in-depth labor information about the Washington job market.

State Marketing and Promotions

Does the state provide any Marketing and Promotional incentives?: No

Innovation Centers

Does the state have Innovation Centers or Additional Resource available for companies?: Yes

14 Innovation Partnership Zones

- Collaboration and innovation are the dual roads that lead to success in the marketplace. Recognizing the power of partnering with like minded companies and individuals, Washington has launched Innovation Partnership Zones (IPZ) around the state.
- Businesses wanting to do business here have the option of locating in one of these zones, which offers a unique environment that brings research, workforce training and private sector businesses together in close geographical proximity to create new companies, products and jobs.
- IPZs are set up by cluster, including aerospace, clean energy, medical devices, interactive media, water management and even wine and hospitality. Each IPZ is sited to take advantage of the region's pool of talent, resources and entrepreneurship.
- For businesses, IPZs can be a smart business move. Each IPZ offers university researchers who work closely with their private sector partners to develop prototypes, incubate start-ups, develop critical training programs and pool best practices in order to blaze new trails in innovation.

Expert trade assistance for small businesses

- Free service designed to help small businesses by opening doors overseas, connecting them with foreign partners, generating leads, matching them with other businesses and tapping into new markets through trade shows, trade missions and other effective strategies. Our Small Business Export Assistance team focuses on specific industry sectors: aerospace, clean technology, information and communication technology, forest products, life science/global health, maritime, consumer products, education and professional services. But we can help any business in Washington State, regardless of industry. Following are just a few of the many services you can take advantage of as a Washington State business: Advocacy, consulting; risk mitigation; market research, trade missions and trade shows, business matchmaking, and customized programs and services.
